Masculine jail clothing was substituted for feminine attire worn by these three youths after they were nabbed early today. They said they had been employed as female domestic servants in fashionable Wilshire district. Photograph dated January 27, 1950

"Masculine jail clothing was substituted for feminine attire worn by these three youths after they were nabbed early today. They said they had been employed as female domestic servants in fashionable Wilshire district. Photograph dated January 27, 1950"

Dr. Treva Ellison
Dartmouth College
Women's and Gender Studies and Geography

Sponsored by: Rutgers University, Department of Women's and Gender Studies
Organized by: Prof. Deb Vargas, Henry Rutgers Term Chair in Comparative Sexuality, Gender, and Race
Prof. Kyla Schuller, Associate Professor