| 01:988:407 / 07742:90   | WOMEN'S GLOBAL HEALTH MOVEMENTS        |  | 3    |                            |
| Instructor KB Burnside-Oxendine  |  |  |      |                            |
| This class investigates the role of women leaders in global movements for health and justice. Students will gain a better understanding of how the contemporary global political-economic context both constrains health activists and offers opportunities for transformative change.  |  |  |      |                            |
| 01:988:409 / 07743:90   | GENDER, ENVIRONMENTAL JUSTICE & HEALTH |  | 3    |                            |
| Instructor Kel Montalvo-Quinones   |  |  |      |                            |
| This class identifies market forces and practices, including pursuit of economic growth, that degrade our environment and disproportionately impact women's health and livelihoods. Students leave the class understanding that environmental pollution is a symptom of a toxic political-economy, that it increases both chronic and emergent health crises, and that health advocates can be pivotal in preventing disaster and reversing toxic trends. |  |  |      |                            |

| Instructor Sophie Smith  |  |  |      |                            |
| This class explores the economic and social roots of debt and the resulting economic and public health crises it produces. Students will explore structural alternatives to debts and begin envisioning an economy less marked by crisis.   |  |  |      |                            |

By checking this box I certify that I have visited the website for the Office of the Registrar, have reviewed and will follow the Policies and Procedures, including information on tuition and fees, schedule revisions and deadlines. I also understand that I am fully liable for all university tuition and/or fees associated with my registration and will make payment or arrangements for payment suitable to the university prior to attendance and will not receive confirmation of registration until such time as payment has been received. I understand that registration is not guaranteed and is contingent on space availability and/or departmental approval. I also understand that transferability of credits is solely determined by the institution(s) I have applied to or am matriculated in. In addition, I recognize that registering for courses via Rutgers Continuing Studies does not guarantee acceptance into any academic program other than the Certificate in Women's Global Health Leadership.
