Course Description:

This Honors Research Seminar is designed to support your research and writing work in generating your senior honors thesis in women's, gender, and sexuality studies. The seminar provides a space to explore and critique the work you and your classmates are doing, and to discuss the knotty problems of interdisciplinary scholarship on gender. We will combine intensive class work with independent work on your own research and writing. We will also learn how to navigate and complete the Institutional Review Board process for students who plan to do interviews, focus groups, and/or surveys.
